Overview

A remarkable presence in the field of seronegative arthritis is found in the web pages of this UK-based initiative. Using the cyberspace jargon, this site allows its members to 'chat'. Joining a discussion group specific to your interests, you can share your professional views with colleagues or patients. This type of service allows you to assist with and participate in the ongoing discussions by means of targeting either the general group or its specific members by email correspondence. Ultimately, this type of initiative could result in an emulation of referral services by providing an almost real-time worldwide referring forum.
